FOR RELEASE: July 19, 2018; 9:00 a.m. EDT

Paoli, PA — Gastrologix, a gastroenterology-specific GPO, is pleased to announce it has entered into an exclusive contract with Stratis Medical, Inc., one of the nation's leading distributors of Video Capsule Endoscopy (VCE) Products.

"We chose Stratis MiroCam following a lengthy due diligence process and negotiations with other major VCE technology providers," says Steve Somers, of Gastrologix. "We are excited to partner with one of the industry leaders in capsule endoscopy. The combination of Stratis' Best-in-Class MiroCam VCE technology, superior customer service, and price/value proposition made them the compelling choice for our member practices." Stratis President and CEO William Bookwalter said, "We are honored and excited to be awarded this exclusive contract with Gastrologix and we look forward to partnering with them in bringing the most cost-effective and innovative VCE technology to their extensive membership."

The Stratis MiroCam VCE system is intended for visualization and monitoring of the small bowel mucosa such as in suspected Crohn's disease, lesions that may be the source of GI bleeding and iron deficiency anemia. MiroCam is the first capsule endoscopy system with Human Body Communication, a patented technology utilizing the human body as a communication medium. This innovative approach results in high image resolution and longer operating time, enabling more consistent and accurate diagnosis of the entire small bowel.

The Stratis MiroCam® MC2000B Dual Camera Capsule Endoscope, is the latest VCE technology to receive 510K Market Clearance designed for increased mucosal visualization of the small bowel. Dr. Paul Akerman, Chief Medical Officer and Director of Therapeutic Endoscopy at University Gastroenterology in Providence, RI said "The Stratis MiroCam VCE system is vital part of the care of the GI patient. MiroCam is highly cost competitive and can have a significant and positive impact on the office-based GI practice."
